Cavalry Charges Mob Which Surrounds Infantry Company; 20 Slain.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Warsaw.—Twenty-two persons have been killed and three score wounded in riots and bombings growing out of the strike of railway workers. The disorders occurred despite the agreement of officials to call off the strike in return for the government's promise to withdraw the military from the railroads.

The most serious riot was at Cracow where a crowd surrounded and stormed a company of infantry. The men were rescued by a cavalry charge in which twenty persons were slain. Most of the dead were soldiers, including three officers.

A bomb exploded in Warsaw yesterday in the headquarters of the socialists, killing two persons. The city was alarmed by the disturbance, but no further trouble occurred.

HIGHWAY WORKER STANDARD RULES ILL FIVE MONTHS

Cement Finisher on County Job Laid Up with Pneumonia Since May.

Representatives of the Wisconsin industrial commission were in Janesville, Wednesday, to hear testimony advanced in the claim of J. W. Holmes, 61, Rock county highway workman who has been in Mercy hospital since May 20 when he contracted pneumonia while working out the Janesville-Evansville concrete road. He has had medical and hospital expenses of $450 and has received no compensation.

Working as a cement finisher on the county job, Holmes says he was required to kneel in the wet cement and to work in the cold water up to his neck during up to the day's work. He then had to travel four miles and sleep in a bunk-house in a drafty cabin. In doing this, he contracted pneumonia and has been totally disabled since.

The county is covered by compensation insurance in such cases.

Chief Examiner P. T. McCormick and Edward H. Hall, reporter both of Madison, conducted the hearings here.

In one of the cases it was announced a settlement had been effected so it was not heard. This case involved injuries to abdomen and neck suffered by Russell Verner, 21, Hudson, Ill., while driving a truck on a road between Waukesha and Geneva, June 6, for Turvey & Son, contractors of Fontana.

The case of N. J. Casey vs. the Rock county highway commission was called.

Dodge Injury Claim.

Testimony was heard in the compensation claim of Paul J. Dodge, 40, of 207 Elmwood street, who said he had both ankles sprained and bruised Oct. 6, 1922, when a roof caved in while he was wrecking a building for the Samson Tractor company.

The account of the applicant being ill with diphtheria, the case of William A. Albright, 21, 1916 Franklin avenue, who, P. T. Cullen & Son, was posted. Albright claims he suffered a severe strain while lifting steel for his employer on March 20, 1922, at 357 South Main street.

Another action before the commission is the claim of Clinton Johnson, 29, of Beloit, against the Wisconsin National Bank. While in Camp Douglas this summer with Company L, Beloit, Johnson suffered a perforated wound in the lid and ball of his right eye when a cartridge back-fired. The accident occurred July 25.

If the several governments are unable to agree regarding the setting up of the investigating committee, this decision was reached by Sir John Bradbury of Great Britain, M. Barthou of France, Signor D'Arezzo of Italy, and M. Bezememans of Belgium, at a meeting of the commissioners last evening at which Col. James A. Logan, official observer for the United States, also was present.

Mile Into Sky in Minute, Is Record

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Mitchell Field, N. Y.—In minute an airplane went almost one mile high yesterday and man had made another mark in the sky.

More comparable, perhaps, with the passage of lightning than any other, are the marks that have been made from the way out of Mitchell Field and finished up in the pilot's seat was Lieut. A. J. Williams, known as "Al" when he pitched for the New York Giants, holder of the world's speed record which he established last week at 266 miles an hour.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Atlanta.—The culmination of a day of thrills witnessed by 20,000 people, unbroken by the rain, took place when Lieut. Williams and Lieut. Harold J. Brown, both of the navy, took off and none but official observers realized that Williams' plane, its exhaust pipe cutting fire that left a blazing trail, was going for a record. The previous record for speed record was 26,000 feet in one minute, made by Roland Robie.

Although Tuscaloosa officials say the identity of the victim has not been established, Chief Deputy Sheriff Henry Hill of Tuscaloosa county, who returned from Tuscaloosa yesterday, still insists that the name of the woman was Mrs. Williams. There are other details to be investigated before it can be made known his findings.

The body of the woman showed that the skull had been fractured and ribs broken. Officials are confident that the first was for the purpose of hiding murder.

The victory of the democrats in Kentucky, where Representative William J. Fields defeated Charles W. Dawson, represented a swing of the pendulum which in the last election favored the Republicans. Governor Edwin J. Marcus, nominated into office, Mr. Fields' majority was decisive, and he will have a democratic legislature to support him.

Governor Ritchie, elected in Maryland over Alexander Armstrong, republican, had an increased majority over his first election. It is difficult, however, to determine what change in the political complexion of the state was made by the independent candidates in the election.

Demands of State University for $50 Is Met with Check.

Lynn Whaley, coroner, sent his personal check this morning to J. B. Klemmers, associate professor of mechanics at the state university, in order to start the test of the steel used in the coroner's jury. The coroner's jury is waiting for this test, and after much correspondence this letter was received this morning from Prof. Klemmers:

Your letter to Prof. M. O. Withey has been turned over to me. Mr. Muchnick had previously been in touch with me.

I am plumbly taking ten specimens of steel in tension, determining the yield point, the ultimate strength, the percentage of elongation, and the percentage of reduction of area.

Our mechanician estimates that the machining of these specimens will cost fifty dollars. The cost would be more and it may be less. There will be an additional charge for testing the specimens. Before going ahead with the work I am asking you to send me a retaining fee of fifty dollars to cover the estimated cost of machining.

If you would have the machining of specimens done at Janesville we would be glad to have you with a sketch of what is needed.

Yours very truly,
J. B. KLEMERS,

Associate Professor of Mechanics, College of Mechanics and Engineering.

The price of crude oil should be based on the value of the product, cost of operation, plus a reasonable profit."

Testimony in the oil investigation will be considered carefully by Attorney General Blern before it is determined what steps, if any, will be taken by the state as a result of the inquiry.

PETE JUST WON'T BELIEVE "HE'S OFF," DEMANDS JURY OF 12

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Ashtabula—Pete Zarowski, a fat, pale, rustling man, Butternut, has no logic in a decision of two doctors finding him insane, simply because he indulged in a few unconventionalities, such as wife beating and attempted suicide. Therefore he has demanded that the finding of the medical men who examined him be set aside and that his mental condition be passed on to his attorney.

Zarowski was first arrested some days ago upon complaint of his wife, who charged him with abusing his family. Two physicians reported they could find no mental abnormality. However, Zarowski was detained in the county jail here. He was visited yesterday in the jail by attorney to him, and he was allowed to go to his room for several hours early Sunday, at the time the police say the shooting occurred.

The two doctors who made the investigation then declared the person in insane. Zarowski was released on a $1000 check at a Monroe bank, to which was attached his father's signature.

BAN ON WESTERN ALFALFA IN TIME

Stop Shipments of Alfalfa from Districts Infected with Weevil.

Wisconsin's recent quarantine against alfalfa from the Rocky mountain states was placed just in time, according to the commissioners of agriculture, John Jones, Jr., Extensive purchases had been made by Wisconsin districts for fall delivery. To make up the shortage in the hay crop here, some orders had already been shipped from infected areas when the quarantine went into effect Oct. 1.

One car of hay from southern Idaho reached this state the last week in September and three more arrived early in October. They were destined for Milwaukee, Green Bay, Wausau and West Allis, and all but one have been unloaded when traced by the Wisconsin department of agriculture. The latter has been shipped for immediate feeding outside the state, while the others are being held for subjection to temperatures which the weevil cannot survive. These cars were part of orders by one company totaling about 500 tons from the infected areas, but cancellations have been sent for the remaining 26 cars.

The quarantine is being administered jointly by S. P. Franken, state entomologist, and W. H. Stroud, director of feed and fertilizer inspection. The alfalfa weevil, according to these authorities, is one of the most injurious pests in the United States. It was accidentally introduced into Utah in packing crates from Australia about 1904, and its ravages there were much greater than in its former home. Loss from this source often exceeds half the crop when no control measures are employed.

By means of spraying the alfalfa fields, and introduction of parasites from other countries, losses in Utah have been reduced but in the meantime the weevil has spread through the southern half of Idaho and into four counties of Colorado, Wyoming, Oregon, Nevada and California. Where the pest is recently established, unsprayed alfalfa fields may be seen gray and dead in summer. Minnesota and South Dakota have followed the lead of Wisconsin in passing quarantine regulations, and it is understood that Iowa and possibly other states will soon take the same action. All the western states have maintained similar quarantines against the infected areas since the introduction of the weevil, and except in one case have been successful in preventing any spread of the pest except by flight.

JUNIOR CLUB LEADERS MEET HERE SATURDAY

DOG LICENSE TAGS ARE BEING MADE

Madison—Preparations are now being made to issue the license tags for dogs for 1924 as required by provisions of the Wisconsin dog law. Approximately 200,000 dog tags are manufactured and furnished to the various county clerks for distribution to the town, village and city treasurers who issue the licenses. Recent reports show that the dog law is effective in reducing the number of dogs that it offers to owners of stock killed by dogs is of great aid. By testing all dogs a fund is provided which is ample to take care of all losses sustained.

NOLTE NAMED HEAD OF JUNIOR "PROM"

Madison—Clifford S. Nolte, Waukesha, was elected chairman of the "Junior prom" at the state university in the second election ordered as a result of a large discrepancy in last week's vote. BLAINE SPEAKS AT HOLSTEIN MEETING

Madison—Gov. John J. Blaine, in an address before the Holstein Breeders' association here last night, said that he had no objection to certain interests that industry in Wisconsin is in the decline. He declared that the farmer, and not the industrial operator, has cause for complaint that industry in Wisconsin has "far outstripped agriculture in the number of persons engaged and the value of the manufactured products," and that the agricultural industry of the state today is measured by the movement of population from farm to city. The gathering was occasioned by the new sales pavilion of the breeders' association here.

Manager's Plan Is to Join All Workers in One Department.

COLUMBUS, O.—Tobacco growers of the Miami valley, with membership in their new co-operative association representing more than two-thirds of the tobacco acreage of the district, are winding up the organization work of the association and laying plans for co-operative selling of their produce. The association was formed last month by David Hill of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation, which has been working with the organization committee of growers.

According to the latest tabulation made at the Dayton headquarters of the association, practically 99 per cent of the tobacco acreage of Butler county is now under contract to the association for a protective sale. In Warren county the figure is 55 per cent. Greene county lags 17 acres in the two-thirds acreage figure thought desirable by the organization committee for the success of the association. Miami county has 22 percent of its acreage grown by association members. Montgomery, Darke and Preble counties are all slightly under the two-thirds figure.

KIWANIS SHOW.

Again the Kiwanis Minstrel organization has scored a hit with its third annual performance, to a packed house, people turned away and unable to get in for the second and third presentations tonight and Thursday. "The Jollies of 1923" with its bright costumes, its comedy and its brilliancy, put on by strictly amateur talent, was a winner from the moment the curtain rose last night. In the afternoon there was the first dress rehearsal, an interesting scene for the children. It proved a thrill-a-minute in the evening with the added orchestra and the crowded auditorium, with as fine an audience as one has ever seen in Janesville the piece went with a snap and a go that could hardly be equalled by a professional entertainment. Songs and dances, comedy and chattering scene after scene, after another, like clock work.

In such a moment it is hard for a critic to be critical or to separate the members of the cast, one from the other, as to the contributions to the greatest measure of enjoyment. It is a never failing rule of minstrels participating to do what they have to do with perfection, if that one is removed a vacancy is at once noted.

Of course Bradley Conrad is hard to beat as a negro comedian. He would be in place in a road show. Minstrelsy is not what it used to be, but to one who remembers the days of Jack Harvey, Danvers and Benedict, or Durley Wilson, Primrose and West, Mr. Conrad's work brings back memories of the old semi-circle. Rex Jacobs, Ervin Sartell, Dr. Stewart Richards, and Henry Traxler occupied the stage for high comedy and songs. Otto Papek as the hyena was a good addition, though the one way a serum. Roger Cunningham, the dignified city attorney, as the master of ceremonies and Interlocutor, kept the gaps filled. Alan Dunwiddie is a real tough guy as a messenger. Frelon Newell, the link, would have deceived his closest friend in his make-up.

The troupe included members of the Kiwanis Club, Dr. Thomas Snodgrass and Art School, were as usual, given encores for exceedingly good numbers.

The end men—George Gilman, Frank Kennedy, Oscar Nelson, Rex Jacobs, Bradley Conrad, Stewart Richards, and Otto Papek—put on a repertoire of jolts and songs which brought applause and laughter.

The idyl group dances were the most rhythmically perfect of anything done in any of the Kiwanis shows. Ann Jackson's song, "Mr. Smith," with chorus, made a decided hit. Stewart Richards' "Carolina Moon" received a decided response. Little George Melanchka was wheeled across the stage by a typical mammy—a part not programmed!

And finally came the wedding which from the Darktown standpoint with City Manager Henry Traxler as the person, Rex Jacobs, Groves and Otto Papek as the bridegroom, and Eddie Stellens as the minister, with a nice musical hit. Mrs. Durley Peterson sang "Here Comes the Bride." In costume, and was given a fine reception for her rendition.

It is impossible to tell the whole story of the performance. You have to see it to get the hit and the verve of the the minstrelsy with its comedy and one climax follow another in such rapid succession that you forget what did happen in the attention given to each new situation.

Somewhere, in fact, in many somewhere, in Janesville and vicinity are children, crippled and without muscle in the world, who will be born with birth defects due to the vicious response of Janesville people.

The show was a tribute to the work of Ross Harvey, director for the Joe Egan company, who has worked night and day for ten days to make this the star production of the series of three shows which the same director and company have provided for the Kiwanis.

During the intermissions candy was sold through the aisles. This candy was purchased at cost and the profit goes to the Underprivileged Child fund also.

The following young women in the east were: Mrs. Edith Stellens, Mrs. Durley Peterson, Misses Misses, Gladys Wiggin, Lois Woodstock, Charlotte Head, Leon Adams, Edith Bradley, Kathryn Monk, Jessie Smith, Anna Schmitz, Mrs. William Eddie Stellens, Judge Gratiot, Lois René, Mildred Hayes, Hattie Lang, Lila Ben Connell, Edna Thelma, Helen Franklin, and Thelma Tapley.

Great Crow Flocks Swirl in Newark

A horde of crows, numbering 2,000 or more, swarming in a great black swirling mass, have been noticed by farmers and hunters in Newark township, west of Beloit. The small woods near the farm of Henry Weland was alive with the crows, the place apparently being a rookery. Small flocks would leave and wing their way in feeding excursions.

As it arose or given a signal by leaders, the crows took flight from the woods, concentrated in one flock and for five or 10 minutes swirled around in fancy formations, presenting a most unusual sight.

100 TEACHERS TO STATE CONVENTION

Janesville Schools to Be Closed During Meeting in Milwaukee.

Close to 100 teachers from this city will attend the 75th annual convention of the Wisconsin Teachers' Association at Milwaukee Thursday and Friday. The opening business session started Wednesday, with Miss E. Mac Clark and Miss Janet Cody attending from Janesville.

Supt. E. O. Holt will speak before one of the special sectional meetings.

Herman L. Brown, attorney general of Wisconsin, will talk on "The Wisconsin Retirement Law" Thursday morning. Among the other speakers are Glenn Frank, editor of the century magazine; George A. Dean, of the college of education of the University of Wisconsin Steffensen, the famous arctic explorer; and Dr. S. Peck's Cadian. Several professors of the University of Wisconsin will also speak.

Headquarters for the convention will be at the Hotel Wisconsin. A concert will be given Thursday night in honor of those attending. It is expected several thousand will be present.

TOO MUCH POLITICS IN COMMISSIONS IS HURTING RAILROADS

R. Schmidley, manager of the Janesville Electric company, Wednesday morning stated that the companies with which he is connected have no fault to find with the Wisconsin railroad commission, the body which supervises all public utilities in the state.

Too Much Interference.

C. C. Shockley, Rockford, general passenger agent of the Rockford & Interurban, Tuesday night commented vigorously in agreement with the remarks by the United States attorney.

Declaring that the railroads now are worse off than they were 25 years ago; that men who do not know anything about the railroad business cannot be trained in a year to be good commissioners, Attorney Dougherty said there will not be any peace until the public realizes that must leave the roads in the hands of the men responsible to their investors. Commissions, he said, have depreciated the service and the value of the railroads.

Meeting Is Unique.

Tuesday night's dinner and meeting was the first of its kind held in the United States, it is believed. One hundred and twenty-five employees and executives of the utility companies and executives of the utility companies of the city—telephone, telegraph, electric, gas, traction and water—were present as the guests of the companies. The purpose of the meeting, it was stated, was to give the employees a better idea of the value of their service and its importance in the community.

Commenting on this purpose, Mr. Dougherty pointed out that for years public feeling has been bitter against utilities, largely because it knows little of their operation and difficulties. Government bodies and commissions, he declared, have not changed the conditions.

Service Is Keynote.

Service was the keynote of the banquet. It was emphasized by W. S. Vivian, Chicago, head of the public relations division of the Middle West Utilities.

Though a city would be thrown into chaos were the products of all the public utilities shut off at the same instant, day in and out the public takes its electricity, water, gas, telephones and trolley as a matter of course, Mr. Vivian related. It is therefore up to the employee who makes the possible or who attends to route calls, to right misunderstandings of the public.

Utilities affect every one, other than in use of the service, Mr. Vivian said. There are 30,000,000 stockholders. Capital is $17,000,000,000. Banks of the country hold $2,000,000 in bonds, so that every bank depositor is indirectly interested. Insurance firms have millions in utility bonds, he said, so that every insurance policy holder is indirectly affected by the success of the utilities.

Urge Use of Smile.

"We aim to give an honest dollar of service for every dollar and we cannot expect the people to pay the rates unless they get an honest dollar's worth," he continued. "The public is more interested than we. Service is not the delivery of so much of anything—that's only delivery plus the sum total of every individual in the organization. The sum total is everything there is to each person, morally, mentally, heart enlarging, stretching all they are, all they can be. Service is doing things you don't have to do."

He urged greater use of the smile, saying "every act of every employee makes an impression that effects the welfare of the company."

Several Others Talk.

Other speakers were Mr. Samual, Mr. Schmidley, Ira Wortendyke, manager of the New Gas Light company; W. T. Colby, local manager of the Wisconsin Telephone company; and W. C. Sparkes, general manager of the Rockford & Interurban. Each stressed the value of service to the public.

Manager Sparkes brought up an old issue when he said no matter how much might be done in building up the service, the pneumatic traction system, the work of six months had broken down when "the Northwestern had up our cars by trains at crossings."

Many Visitors Attend.

Others present from out of the city were:

C. Lowen, Footlock Electric company; Charles F. Oerderhoff, Elgin Footlock company; G. C. Neff, Madison, vice-president of the Wisconsin Light & Heat company; Joseph Phelan, Rockford, general superintendent of the Rockford & Interurban; T. H. Stoffel, East Pittsburgh, special engineer, Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company; J. B. Schubert, D. J. H. public relations department, Illinois Northern Utilities company; P. F. Keefe, Madison, public relations department, Wisconsin River Power company; E. S. Cary, Evansville Municipal Electric company; T. N. Moore, Madison, district manager, Wisconsin Telephone company; J. H. Hart, Milwaukee, special agent, Wisconsin Telephone company.

Mr. Vivian spoke at the Janesville and Edgerton high schools, and at the local Rotary club, Tuesday.

BUSINESS COUNCIL

LUNCHEON SPEAKER

James W. Fisk Addresses Merchants; Sales Folk Talk Tonight.

James W. Fisk, merchandising counsel of the Milwaukee Journal and the Janesville Gazette, outlined for more than 100 merchants how to stimulate and increase sales through systematic plan at the luncheon Wednesday noon at the Y. M. C. A., arranged by the Retail Merchants division of the Chamber of Commerce and the Janesville Gazette.

Mr. Fisk spoke Wednesday night to the participants of local stores at the Y. M. C. A. at 12:30, and will illustrate his lecture with interesting slides. His talk Wednesday was filled with suggestions for a sales campaign and courting and trebling business. The methods used by those which have been most practical.

Advertising columns are more powerful in molding public opinion than the editorial column, although I have told our editor that and hasn't convinced him," the merchandising expert told his audience.

"It is now realized that bad women to wear tins in the summer-time and makes men attire them as they do for gold," Mr. Fisk declared.

The declared advertising battle is an hideous road will for the business and has done more to concentrate demands than any other factor in business.

The paid advertising man, he commented, and anyone who advertises reasonably well, as well have his reward.

Speaking of sales promotion, Mr. Fisk said sales are not always selling goods at cut price.

"The day when we have to give goods away is past," he said, and told some of the merchants that he has been successful at regular prices but advertised at unusually priced goods.

Personal Advertising.

He spoke of other forms of advertising—post cards, telephone calls and signs of delivery cars and stressed the necessity of having window decorative newspaper advertising.

"A courteous treatment for all customers visiting in word to mouth advertising is of more benefit than all other advertising," Mr. Fisk said.

Gordon Neumayr, chairman of the retail merchants division, presided.

BERGMAN FUNERAL TO BE THURSDAY

By association staff

Milwaukee—Funeral services for the Rev. Henry Bergmann, 63, vice-president of the Lutheran Synod in the Southeastern district of Wisconsin, and editor of the "Gospel Herald," a church organ, who died yesterday, will be held at home in Milwaukee Thursday.

He was an early settler of Winona county and a graduate of Northwestern college of Waterford and the Milwaukee Lutheran Theological seminary.

His sermon subject Tuesday night was "Truth, What It Is and How to Get It." The pastor said in part:

"Our text tells us that faith is the assurance of things hoped for, a conviction of things not seen. The physician does not see all the proofs we believe they exist. The inventor does not see all the finished product but is assured it can be produced.

"The banker does his business on credit which is another name for faith. He does not see the honesty of his customer but is assured of it. A financial party can't live in this world through loss of faith."

"Religious faith in faith in a person. Paul says, 'Know Him whom I have believed.' This person is Christ, not philosophy, not science, not doctrine, but the person Christ. Faith leads us to words. When one really has faith in Christ, he is ready to receive."

It requires true faith to walk with God when others are walking away from Him. Faith comes by hearing. We gain faith in great men by hearing what they said and did. We gain faith in Christ by hearing of His life, sacrifice."

All War Veterans Get Invitations

Post card invitations are being received Wednesday by every former service man of Janesville and surrounding territory to attend the Armistice day supper at the high school cafeteria next Sunday. The dinner will be given at 6 p. m.

The Chamber of Commerce is arranging for the "show." Members of the various patriotic organizations in the city will arrange the menu and do the serving.

The invitations, sent out through the Richard Ellis Janesville post of the American Legion, say:

"This is the first affair of its kind put on by the citizens and we have promised a big turnout and reserved a place for you if it is a service man bring him along."

THIRTY LIBRARIANS ATTEND DELAVAN DISTRICT SESSION

Thirty delegates representing 10 cities in this section were present at the district library meeting at Delavan, Tuesday. Those from here were Miss Elsie Howe, Miss Jessica George and Miss Elizabeth Petersen.

One of the features was the round table discussion of the topic of "How to Stretch the Dollar," and how to meet the Library Board.

Among the speakers were Mr. Chapman, a member of the board of Delavan, who talked on "What a Library Board Would Like to Know About Its Library"; Mrs. Colby, Monroe, who spoke on "How to Advertise the Library" and Miss Spaulding of Brookfield, who told how various types of people had been drawn to the library through the display of books especially interesting to that class. Miss Ethel Fair, Madison, president.

Miss Fair, who is bookmaster, Miller, formerly children's librarian in this city, was hostess to the convention at the Aram Public Library there.

Miss Fair talked on book reviews and reports and told which of the publishers reviews would be accepted by libraries.

BRODHEAD RESERVES TO PRESENT PAGEANT

High school girls of Brodhead are holding rehearsals for a pageant to be presented Nov. 16 at a parent teacher meeting in the high school auditorium under the auspices of the Federation of clubs. About forty girls will participate. The parent meeting will be a colorful affair, portraying the needs of girl life and showing how the Girl Reserve work of the Y. W. C. A. helps to meet these needs. Girl Reserve workers of Janesville have been invited to attend. It is also expected that Miss Francaella Stuenkel, national Y. W. C. A. organizer, will be present and speak.

NEW SHOWROOM IS GREAT IMPROVEMENT

Opened as one of the finest in the city, the new showroom of the Bowe City Implement company, 201 West Milwaukee and North Bluff streets, was opened for business Wednesday.

Convenience of the building, has caused the main entrance from the corner to the Milwaukee street side moved the office and stock room from the rear to the front and placed a new double door service entrance on the North Bluff street side. Rural scenery along the walls of the room, and wicker chairs add to the comfort of the room.

The improvements have made the exterior of the building much more attractive, the big plate glass show windows adding much to the structure. The change is a great improvement to the corner and to East Milwaukee street in general.

Mr. Fisk spoke Wednesday night to the participants of local stores at the Y. M. C. A. at 12:30, and will illustrate his lecture with interesting slides.

ZELLNER PROGRAM BENEFIT FOR MOVIES

What is said to be an unusually good entertainment will be given in the high school auditorium tonight when W. J. Zellner, an impersonator of con-liderable note, will appear under the auspices of the student council. The money taken in is to be used for worthy movies and entertainment at the auditorium during the remainder of the year.

Biograph takes fire—Back firing of the motor in their T. Thorpe's nickel slinger machine at the corner of Fremont street and Biographer avenue, caused a call to the fire department at 2:45 p. m. Tuesday. There was no damage, although some gasoline burned for several seconds.

The paid advertising man, he commented, and anyone who advertises reasonably well, as well have his reward.

Speaking of sales promotion, Mr. Fisk said sales are not always selling goods at cut price.

"The day when we have to give goods away is past," he said, and told some of the merchants that he has been successful at regular prices but advertised at unusually priced goods.

Personal Advertising.

He spoke of other forms of advertising—post cards, telephone calls and signs of delivery cars and stressed the necessity of having window decorative newspaper advertising.

"A courteous treatment for all customers visiting in word to mouth advertising is of more benefit than all other advertising," Mr. Fisk said.

Gordon Neumayr, chairman of the retail merchants division, presided.

The Election Means Little.

Elections Tuesday in several congressional districts to fill vacancies mean little insofar as actual trend of public opinion is concerned except that there is no revolution against the republican administration. Democratic districts remain democratic and republican districts remain republican. One would be very rash to have thought Vermont would elect any but a republican to the United States senate and a republican member of the house to fill a vacancy. The republican candidate for the U. S. senate in Vermont, Porter Dale, was openly and avowedly dry while his democratic opponent was for the repeal of the 18th amendment. Mr. Dale won by a handsome majority in one district in New York state, the 24th, formerly held by republicans and which elected a democrat in 1922, returned the former republican congressman, Benj. Fairchild, to office. This is the only gain in the several elections and can hardly be called a very important victory, merely a return to the original status.

The nation is about settled down to the old fixed ways of voting and party alignment is hardly changed from that of ten years ago. One indication of the election however, is that a third party movement in any direction except in the west, and then only in some sections isolated, has made no inroads. The people continue to take their politics straight and still align themselves with definitely determined policies as set forth by the two responsible political parties. The change of one vote in the house will make no perceptible difference in legislation; the senate remains the same with the radical bloc in possession of the balance of power. But as this is without leadership, it may not function as a block to legislation. It is called the "La Follette bloc" but instead of having one leader, each and every senator making up this group, is possessed with the idea that he is able to lead better than some one else. The bloc has so many generals that it may be marched singly in as many different directions.

In a general way the elections have made it easier for the republicans to nominate Calvin Coolidge for the presidency in the convention of 1924.

A poor old Polish woman drank a pint of Milwaukee moonshine and killed the only friend she had on earth. Now get the man who sold the moonshine and make him a party to the murder.

A Senator With a Backbone.

Senator Pepper, of Pennsylvania, has never been known as a dry advocate. But he is a representative of his people and a member of the United States government. He does remember that fact when he says "the cleavage between those who earnestly desire the success of our great national experiment (prohibition) and those who are thirsting for its failure is as marked in one party as in another." I have heard a lot of talk about amending the Volstead act but have never seen a concrete proposal on that subject which seemed to me either socially wise or constitutionally sound. I have enough confidence in the judgment and self control of our people to believe that in ten years' time those who now break the law will either have changed their point of view, died or become unpopular."

This is a good line of admonition for the governor of the state of Wisconsin to consider. It might also be looked over by the element in Milwaukee which has an idea that a conservative republican could be nominated on a wet ticket.

We would like to see that issue tried and a third man who is thoroughly understood to be dry. A. E. Matheson for instance, is in the field against both with the issue fairly and squarely presented on that question.

The fact seems to be so clear that those who are constantly repeating that the Volstead law cannot be enforced have never, either by persuasion, example or action, attempted to aid in any way in such enforcement. They are "thirsting for its failure," as Senator Pepper says.

If the republican national convention wants a place to meet we suggest Emerald Grove or Janesville. Hotel accommodations are about as good one place as another for such a convention.

Among the Others.

Fifty thousand people in the United States, and perhaps more think they can write motion picture scenarios. Maybe they can and then, again, the proof of the pudding is in chewing the string. But along with the hope of almost every girl who stops along the street in bad weather with her galosh tops hanging down, there will some day go on the moving picture stage, is also the other vain hope that some company will buy a scenario and make of the writer a famous person. Not so does it happen, however, in real life. In the official publication of the Authors League of America, Inc., just issued, it is stated that there were 42,020 scenarios written by amateurs in the last year. Of these 42,016 were returned, most of them without being read. Four were adopted but there is no record that any of the four were screened.

Poets may be born but scenario writers are made. It is a closed profession. Scores of schools, pretending to teach scenario by mail, are declared to be nothing but money making schemes. So the ambitious persons who have movie scenes in mind and stories of real life, which they want to transfer to reel life, are wasting time, effort and any money they may pay out, trying to beat

Opportunities For American Boys

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—The industries of the United States will need 400,000 more men for positions of executive and engineering responsibility in 1930 than they used in 1924. This is in addition to the replacements that will be necessary.

At present the enrollment in the technical schools of the country is only slightly in excess of 52,000 as against an enrollment of 51,900 in 1920. These schools are now turning out graduates at the rate of about 2,000 a year but in industry at present less than 20 per cent of those who plan and administer the productive work of the nation are graduates of any college.

This evidence of the business opportunities that await American boys of today is the result of a survey that is being made by a committee of captains of industry that was organized by the National Industrial Conference board, the super organization of the industrial interests of the country. It is revealed in a preliminary report that has just been made public and will be supplemented from time to time as the work is carried to a conclusion.

The committee is known as the joint committee on engineering education and includes in its membership Howard E. Coffin, vice president of the Hudson Motor Car company of Detroit; Col. T. C. Dickson, commandant of the United States arsenal at Watertown; S. P. Bush, president of the Buckeye Steel Castings company of Columbus; Howard Elliott, chairman of the Northern Pacific railroad; E. M. Herr, president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, Pittsburgh; William H. Nichols, chairman of the Allied Chemical and Dye corporation, New York; Henry D. Sharpe of the Brown & Sharp Manufacturing company, Providence; A. H. Rogers of Rogers, Mayer & Dall, New York; and Prof. J. H. Fernald of the University of Pennsylvania.

The fact that big business in the United States needs more trained young men to direct it than the technical schools are now supplying led to the creation of this committee. Youths who are being graduated from college every June may think that their talents and services are not sought after as they should be, but the truth of the matter is that if they had the right kind of training and are not afraid of work, they can command better jobs, with better pay, and better prospects, than have ever been available in the nation's history.

This is indicative not only of the growth in American industry and of the strides that are to be made within the next few years, but also of changed methods and conditions of production. The creation of great industrial establishments and systems, the increasing use of machinery, power and other labor-saving devices, and the development of methods of control of production and distribution are all important factors in the situation. Mass production adds greatly to the amount of product per worker, and it likewise requires a relatively larger increase in the proportion of plumeurs and administrators.

The committee says that the facts and figures it has gathered demonstrate that both the normal progress in industrial methods and the approaching new competitive conditions will call for a more decided change than ever before in the quality and number of trained experts and leaders.

The big problem, according to the report, is to adapt the education of those who are to direct industry to the ever-changing conditions of industry itself. The needs of the next generation must be considered in the educational plans of today.

The committee may be said to be sounding a warning, as well as broadcasting a message of opportunity to young America. But through it the leaders of industry are also serving notice on their competitors throughout the world that in the coming decade's struggle for industrial and commercial supremacy the United States will marshal the necessary army of 400,000 trained youths. The way will be found to increase the nation's facilities for technical education, and no effort will be spared to impress boys of the propertage with the idea that their big chance in life may be found in industry.

In its preliminary consideration of the matter the joint committee has reached eight conclusions which it desires to have widely disseminated and discussed. They are, in summary:

There is a rapidly growing need for administrative and technical ability in virtually all lines of activity, especially in manufacturing and mechanical industries.

There is an increasing demand for graduates of engineering schools to enter upon work that will fit them for positions of administrative as well as technical responsibility.

The demand for young men with capacity for becoming administrators or technical leaders is greater than the number of such men now being graduated from engineering schools.

It is equally as important that a greater proportion of the graduates of engineering schools be young men of high quality as that the total number of graduates be increased. Therefore admission to these schools should be based on selective tests.

The preparatory schools can perform a great service by evaluating the advantages of an engineering course and guiding toward the engineering schools boys who have an interest in producing things.

There is a growing opinion that the engineering schools should provide a thorough grounding in fundamentals of engineering and applied sciences rather than specialized training.

There should be more and better training schools or courses in connection with industrial establishments to supplement the work of the colleges. Close coordination of educational effort is therefore necessary between industrialists and educators.

No better illustration of the need of industry for trained men could be cited than the fact that it is notoriously difficult for the United States government to retain in its employ the experts whom it devotes to its laboratories and other scientific establishments. No sooner does a man become a recognized specialist in a given field than Uncle Sam finds private business is bidding for the man's services.

Government salaries are low, the opportunities for advancement are not especially attractive to ambitious youths, and the government system is such that offers made by private interests can seldom be met or raised, no matter how desirable it may be to retain the expert in question. Occasionally there is a scientist like the electrical wizard, Schenck, who did not care anything about money rewards or advancement so long as he could carry on the work in which he was interested, but such instances are exceedingly few and far between.

The regular paid scenario writers, in most cases the director who takes a scenario tears it to tatters and the bright and beautiful situations are rebuilt into sets unrecognizable by the author-parent. The will-o'-the-wisp of scenario writing is among the other games which take money and give nothing—a blue sky sort of game it is too.

"We cannot remain aloof," says Mr. Herrick speaking of Europe. Nor have we. American tourists spent nearly a half billion dollars in European cities this year. You cannot call this "aloof."

It seems to be a settled fact that the democratic convention will be held in New York city. It will be a fine chance to put Al Smith over. It may be also suggested that the convention should be held in Wall Street.

FOOTBALL.

Tackling high, and tackling low. Twelve years old and ready to go. And his mother looks with a wistful eye At the not far distant by-and-by. The dawn of the dangerous morning when He'll go to the field with older men.

And the mother says, in a mother's way: "When he's older grown, he will want to play. And the roads are rough and the dangers tall. And they never think of mothers at all. They never think of our dread just then. And the fears that come with our boys are men."

What can I say and what can I do? Time was I yearned for the sergeanting, too; Time was I longed with an ardent soul To battle my way to a far-flung goal. And I know I'd have joyed at a hurt back then Just to take my place with the older men.

Oh, the game is rough, and score the years. And we all get hurt and pull sore heads. We are all thrown hard by the hand of fate. And we all do things where the danger's great. And a boy must learn—and 'tis well he can— In the game of life to play the man.

OUR EFFICIENCY COURSE

Own Your Own Dress Suit.

Why pay rent when you can own your own dress suit and enjoy scenes that belongs to yourself? Why pay your wages to the heartless landlord who owns the dress suit?

You can't tell when you are an owner and not the mere tenant of a dress suit?

There is no place like a dress suit. You never tell when you will have to take a drag in it and what a comfort it is to look forward and realize that you will have a dress suit in your Old age.

There is a certain satisfaction in owning your own dress suit. You take more interest in it than in one that you rent. A dress suit that is rented, especially when the rent is in the wrong place, is never a satisfaction to you. You don't pride in fixing it up here and there because you don't know when you will have to move out of it and leave your improvements for another to enjoy.

A dress suit is built according to your own pocket and specifications and to fit your particular needs is one in which you always take a just pride.

When you move about from one dress suit to another you never can tell what your environment is going to be nor the state of dilapidation in which it has been left by the last tenant. By floating a mortgage you can easily own one yourself, and in buying it on the installment plan it will seem just like paying rent.

Do it today. Own your own dress suit. See the contented millions who have taken the fling.

Who's Who Today

JOSEPH MATTHES.

Joseph Matthes is the real leader of the Rhinebeck Republicans. He is about thirty-five years of age and is a Bavarian by birth. He is said by some to resemble the Italian premier.

Matthes is a stocky build, with a heavy head of coal black hair which is never brushed straight back and dark brown eyes that seem both mild and penetrating. He is a dominating personality.

His dress is always the same, a close-fitting, double-breasted suit, dark blue shirt with a collar of the same color and a large black bow tie.

For some time he was the editor of the newspaper of the Klippenfelder which has been described by those not friendly to him as "yellow." Students of Frankfort University were said to carry copies of this sheet in their pockets but none would admit reading it.

Wilhelm Von Metzen, formerly an important figure in the Krupp organization, is one of Matthes' chief lieutenants. Metzen went to Switzerland some years ago following a court hearing in connection with the management of the Krupp affair. He returned to the occupied area in Germany after the armistice.

There is a sign that is read as indicating some great change in the motion picture industry. New inventions will make marvelous effects possible.

The new model of this date has a peculiar significance in that it warns of turbulent scenes in many foreign countries, which inevitably must be reflected in the American mind.

Kars, ruler of the assegai on the eve of the seventh, shows a spirit of unrest and discontent that is particularly ominous to Great Britain.

Much illness of an obscure and epidemic character is indicated and the public should be warned most carefully.

There is a sign read as indicating grave danger of war for England and the government will probably have a new crisis to meet this month.

The development of psychic science is prognosticated and it will reach a point where many most questions are satisfactorily demonstrated. Edison's experiments prove this and will be the scene of much dispute.

Persons whose birthday it is have the forecast of an active year in business. Journeys and changes are forecast. It will be wise to beware of false friends.

Children born on this day probably will be very clever and individual in their mentality. These subjects of psychic nature will be rapidly in business or professional life.

Personal Health Service

HURRAHING FOR HOOTCH

In 1918, before prohibition and before the war, there was a great deal of alcoholism in New York city. In 1920, under prohibition and with the men back home from the war, only 127 deaths occurred from alcoholism in this European metropolis of America. These are figures of the health department of New York city.

In 1917, according to statistics of American life insurance companies, the death rate from alcoholism among policyholders was 4.9 per 100,000. In 1920, the death rate had dropped to 0.9 per 100,000 policyholders.

Just as an announcement from the department of public welfare recently published in the press indicates that the number of cases of alcoholism treated in the hospitals under the jurisdiction of Mr. Cole's department has steadily increased since 1919, Commissioner Cole declares that the cases of alcoholism are not only increasing but are getting more serious.

Dr. John Fitzgerald, general medical superintendent in Mr. Cole's department, explains it all in this illuminating manner:

"It is an invariable fact that liquor is easier to get and that it is of much better quality than obtainable heretofore since prohibition. This might argue against the theory that causes of alcoholism are largely removed by prohibition, but that is not the case. There is no doubt that the number of addicts rapidly increased when prohibition set in and alcoholics were more numerous in 1920 than in 1918. The addition of beer and soft drinks to the list of intoxicants has made it easier to drink good liquor.

"In order to appreciate the logic of the foregoing remarks, one would probably have to fill up with some of the better quality bootlegger liquor in New York city.

Then Dr. Fitzgerald points out with equal clarity the relation between alcoholism and drug addiction. He maintains that a small number of addicts required treatment in the year when alcoholism was rampant; the number of addicts rapidly increased when prohibition set in and alcoholics were more numerous in 1920 than in 1918. The addition of beer and soft drinks to the list of intoxicants has made it easier to drink good liquor.

Many thousands of opium and morphine addicts cultivate the drug craving in the liquor joints. None of the physicians who treat alcoholics in hospitals are ignorant of the fact that liquor is readily obtainable, and he is of the opinion that people who drink will not resort to drugs so long as they are able to get good liquor.

When I was ready to move on again, he was gone, leaving me very unhappy. The gay youth, the darling of society, the beloved of the finest of the biggest-natured, and above all, of the tenderest heart I know—came to this in a few short weeks. As God lives, during the days while the impression lay so strongly on me, I could have caused no hour I left my own country to be the cause, however innocently, of such an overthrow.

That he had shown signs of dissipation added poignancy to my distress. Self-indulgence of any kind had never been one of his failings. The serpent coiled at his feet must be biting deep into his pores, to drive one so self-controlled into excess.

Three days later I saw him again. Strange as this may seem in a city of over a million, it happened, and that is all there is to it. I was passing down Forty-second Street on my way to the restaurant I patronized when he turned up, looking ahead of me and walking languidly on in the same direction. I had still a block to walk so I kept my pace, wondering if he could possibly be bound for the same eating-place, which, by the way, was the one where we had first met. If so, would it be well for me to follow? and I was yet about the point when I saw another man turn that same corner and move along in his wake some fifty feet behind him and some thirty in front of me.

This was a natural occurrence enough, and would not even have attracted my attention if there had not been something familiar in the man's appearance, something which brought vividly to mind my former encounter with Edgar on Broadway. What was the connection? Then suddenly I remembered. As I shook myself free from the apathy following this startling vision of Edgar, which, like the clutch of death, had held me helpless, I saw that same hand, his slender fingers madly fidgeting, found myself staring at the face of a man brushing by me with a lack of ceremony which showed that he was in a hurry. If I was not, he was the same as the one now before me walking more and more slowly but still holding his own, about midway between us. No coincidence in this. He was here because he had been sent to acknowledge it to myself—because I was here, always here at this time in the late afternoon.

I did not stop to decide on which of us two his mind was most set on, both perhaps—but pursued my course, entering the restaurant soon after the pale, silent man who appeared to be shadowing us.

Edgar was already seated when I stepped in, but in such a remote and inconspicuous corner that the man who had preceded me had to look covertly in all directions before he espied him. When he did, he took a seat next the door, and a moment later I saw him, right behind the waitress who had taken from his pocket. There being but one empty seat, I took it. It, too, was near the door.

I seemed a farce to order a meal under these circumstances. But necessarily known how I could not do to appear simple. And when my dinner was served, I ate it, happy that I was so pleased that I could neither see Edgar nor he me.

HEALTH FOR WORKING WOMEN

Let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Help You to Become Well.

Thousands of girls have to work in homes, offices, stores, mills or factories who are physically unfit for work, with often an aged or invalid father or mother dependent upon them for support. Standing all day week in and week out, or sitting in cramped positions a girl often contracts some disarranged condition of her organic system which calls a halt to her progress and demands restoration to health before she can be of use to herself or anyone else.

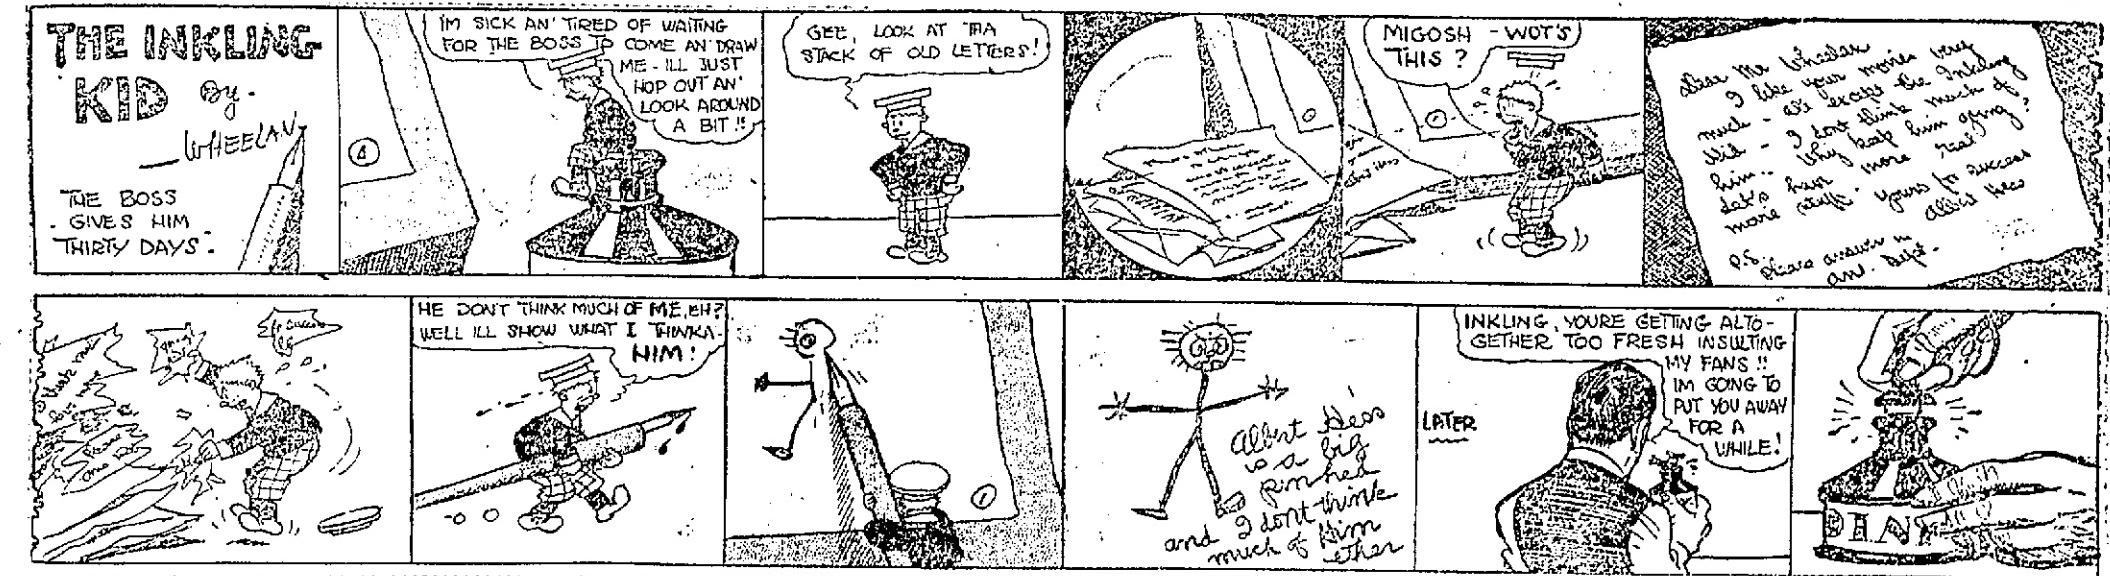

For these distressing weaknesses and derangements these girls have found health to do their work in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"Like many girls, I had troubles every month," says Caroline Mangels, "and they interfered with my work as I could never be sure of my time. My mother often suggested that I take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but I never did until lately. I have had very good results, and am now a private secretary and do my work without missing a day. I recommend your medicine to every girl who speaks of having troubles."

TODAY'S RECIPES

Soft Ginger Cookies—Two-thirds cup molasses, half cup sugar, two eggs, one cup flour, work into the other ingredients. One level teaspoon soda in three tablespoons vinegar, flour to roll. Add ginger or other spice to taste.

Apple Pie—There is another recipe that takes little time and requires but the number of portions required. Heat a pint of milk; separate two eggs. Into the yolks beat three tablespoons of sugar, one tablespoon of cornstarch and pinch of salt. When the milk is at the boiling point pour slowly into the egg mixture. Return to the fire and cook to the consistency of butter. Turn into the crust, add sugar, one and one-half cups of peeled apples and one teaspoon of lemon extract and pour into molds and cover on top of the beaten whites of the eggs, combined with a very little sugar, and brown in the oven.

SOME OATMEAL RECIPES

Oatmeal Betty—Two cups cooked oatmeal, four apples cut up small, half cup raisins, one-half cup sugar, one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon. Mix together, add a dash of nutmeg, if hot or cold. Any dried or fresh fruits, dates or ground pounds, may be used instead of apples. It will serve five people.

Spiced Oatmeal Cake—One and one-half cups flour, one-half cup cooled oatmeal, one-quarter cup sugar, one-quarter cup raisins, one-quarter cup bread crumbs, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, three tablespoons fat, one-quarter cup molasses. Heat the molasses and fat to boiling. Mix with all the other materials. Bake in muffin pans for 30 minutes. This makes 12 cakes.

SCOTCH OAT CRACKERS

Two cups rolled oats, one-quarter cup uncooked flour, one-half cup sugar, one-half teaspoons salt, one-quarter teaspoon soda, one teaspoon yeast. Grind or crush the oats and mix with the other materials. Roll out in a thin sheet and cut in squares. Bake two or three times with baking powder. Always cream butter, salt and sugar first unless otherwise directed. Beat eggs together very light unless directions call for beating separately. Add eggs to creamed mixture, then alternate with flour and liquid. Extract should be added last. Grease pan with a small white hair paint brush dipped in grease, then sprinkle a little sugar over pan and shake it out enough will remain to keep cake from sticking. Always use salt.

LATEST MARKET REPORTGRAIN

Chicago Review. Unexpected strength in best quotations at Liverpool, together with a big bulge in the cotton market at New York, has a definite influence on the grain market, which is showing early dealings. Returns in the value of corn traded also to receive bullish sentiment regarding meat. Buying in the wheat lot has been favorable, and all grades quoted to hold well. The opening which ranged from $1.05 to higher, Dec. 1, $1.06 1/2 to 1.06 1/4, and May 1924, followed by something increased selling which found support holding brought in a material bulge in the heavy price in the middle of the board's trade session. The market, with the help of corn, was rallying again though near bottom. Wheat closed unsettled at 25c lower; corn, 1 1/2c; oats, 1/2c; May 1924, 1/2c; and May 1925, 1/2c. The corn market continued to climb. The government report, Thursday, was expected to register a crop and yield record, and the average of two years. Corn closed strong, 25c higher, Dec. 17, 14c 7/8. Oats started a shade lighter, Dec. 19, 1/2c later showed additional gains. Provisions were firmer in line with oats and corn.

CHEVROLET PLANS MORE FIELD WORK

To Double Number of Factory
Representatives—Sales
Team Out.

As a result of a conference in Chicago of all sales managers of the Chevrolet Motor company, the force of factory representatives under the supervision of the Janesville sales office will be doubled. Mr. Gates, sales manager, announced this today.

At the present time there are 10 factory representatives under Mr. Gates and this number will be increased to 20 within the near future, the sales manager said. This will be done thus the factory men may be made smaller which will insure better service to dealers in helping them increase their sales.

General sales head there. Making the rounds of all the 12 Chevrolet plants, Colby Campbell, vice-president and general manager of the Chevrolet Motor company, left the Janesville plant Wednesday and spent the day here.

Having only last week returned from holding dealers' conferences at Des Moines and Green Bay, and then being present at the meeting in Chicago, Mr. Gates said nothing but optimism and enthusiasm for greater sales is held by the Chevrolet both in the stores within the organization and the dealers.

Conferences Are Success

One hundred dealers attended the meeting at Green Bay and 75 were present at the meeting in the Upper Peninsula.

Especially encouraging was the attitude of bankers toward the Chevrolet. Mr. Gates said that his success was based on the decision of meetings at Indianapolis, Oregon, Des Moines and Spokane that Mr. Gates is contemplating holding others at Wausau and Stevens Point.

An innovation in the Janesville sales technique which is expected to bring about a decided tempo of sales is due to a man who came with a desire to help him out but turned over on the side of selling. Encouraged and aided, the sales team under Mr. Gates of 20, 10,

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.—Advertisement.

Why Not a Modern Car?

If, in the purchase of an automobile, you do not obtain all the great constructive developments that have marked the industry's progress, you deny yourself and your family the full measure of pleasure and safety that every modern car should provide. When you buy a car you should get—

First: A motor with such an abundance of power that it rises supreme over every problem of driving. In the 1924 Chandler you get the famous and flawlessly smooth which is now generally accepted as having no peer in hill or traffic performance, regardless of price.

Second: You should get some type of transmission that makes it impossible for the least experienced driver to clash gears. In the 1924 Chandler you get the

which is opening a new driving era for thousands who have awaited the time when the terrors of gear shifting could be eliminated. Anyone who has used the old-fashioned gear shift lever can use it and make any speed change on the first trial.

The car you buy should be a modern car. We believe that due investigation will convince you that any car, regardless of price, cannot be modern if it lacks any one of these important features.

Drive the 1924 Chandler! Handle the delicately balanced steering wheel yourself! Take an hour to convince yourself that it is the car you want!

(The Traffic Transmission is built complete in the Chandler plant under Campbell patents)

140 Wisconsin Dealers

The Chevrolet has about 400 dealers in Wisconsin and each one is counted on each year to sell a certain number of cars. WHEN BILL FENISKE says that the howling offices of Jamesville provide one of the most interesting places in the state for holding a Badger tournament, the folks of the city have a right to feel grateful. It ought to be a spur to action to keep every plan for the great meet to be held here in January and part of February. Bill, who is 20 years old and going to be Jamesville, is going to show Wisconsin that it deserved being invited the journey, and everything will be in accordance. Sleeping places and eating houses are going to chime in with the efforts to give the 5,000 visitors the time of their lives and do it in style at regular prices just as some cities have done. There will be no price raising here just because some officials are in the city. Isn't that right?

NOW that the state board has seen the 12 fine drives here, gone over them, inspected the building and been enthused, everyone can expect to see the fun begin to fly, the fur of preliminary work. The drive for teams will start before another week ends, and the men and women in Jamesville and while officials here are gathered in the men and the entry fees. Feniske and his helpers will be at work through the state. Bill says there should be 1,650 teams, positively, and he goes as far as to predict 1,150.

ALL THESE plans are going to mean teams of fair-weather punks to Jamesville. Hundreds of stories will appear in the daily and weekly news papers of the state each containing the name of the Bowery city. The attractiveness of the count seat of Rock, its advantages, its hotel and restaurant facilities, its railroad connections—everything about it will be carried in printer's ink from Kenosha in the southeast corner to Superior in the northwest, and from around the Badger to the north to Oconomowoc in the northeast. There will be publicity enough, the legitimate as well as that carries news, to fill a ledger. If a publicity committee were to endeavor to get it all and pay for it, a bank roll of $100,000 couldn't buy it all and have it read so much. That's what a tournament means to a town.

When union means rule-breaking, there is no strength. Ask Milton Union high.

While Johns being misunderstood at Wisconsin, Investigators charge that he has been lodged with Major John Griffith, in western conference commissioner. It was declared by Jones that the accusation against him was without foundation, and that as soon as he got a previous investigation by the Wisconsin athletic council, the player had violated no conference rule.

Both the Badgers and the Illini are training intensively for the contest which will eliminate one or the other from the conference race.

RUMORS FLOODED IN MADISON — Plunkett, Milwaukee, makes punchline of "That Grange is a 'PRO'." Madison rumors circulated here Tuesday afternoon connect the name of Grange, conference star with Illinois with professionalism. The stories say that the crack grid player appeared in games with Green Bay and football of the National Pro and amateur football league. He is said to have played at Rock Island under the name of Smith. Manager of the "Pro" team Tuesday night denied the charge.

The game. Games like that of Saturday, with many thrills for the spectators and despair for coaches, aren't often seen on the gridiron.

"While hating to see one's team lose a game when they are fighting to make it, I am delighted when their opponents are bad losers, nevertheless am proud of our Crimson eleven and also to see a man like Gibson. He has a fine team and his players executed those three passes perfectly at the right time, and they must be given credit even though it seemed our defense cracked at the last minute. These so-called 'badges' together with a easily funny when victory seemed within our grasp, decided the result of the game."
